

People often become overwhelmed by the speed and distractions of modern life, losing touch with simple daily experiences.